The objectives of this study were to learn about the historical and physical aspect of Khon Kaen urban communities, especially the usage system of open space from the past and relationships between urban dwellers and public open space at community, district and town levels in the present with analysis of potential, limitation including proposal for the development guidelines for public open space at different levels in accordance with urban life and with future urban development directions.

The finding : Khon Kaen urban community settlement originated during the 12th-16th centuries of Buddhist Era, then declined till the town establishment in B.E. 2340 by Thao Phia Muang Phan. The original site was at the old town communities, close to Bung Bon, given a new name "Bung Kaen Nakhon" in the government of field Marshal Sarit Thanarat, who has a major role in urban development ever since. People's relationships with public open space have been their social phenomenon with open-space environment at every level: community, district and town. In the past, called "Suan Sanuk" (Amusement Park). After B.E. 2475, there was a preparation for public open space at the Town Pillar, At present, the similar public open space is implemented to meet a variety of people's needs: public parks, embankment areas, government areas, streets and footpaths including some private areas - each area has different potential and limitation. Therefore, the development guidelines for public open space for urban communities are given importance in the suitability of locations with the urban dwellers' use of public open space. More significantly, the present existence should connect with the past for quality public open space to correspond highly with the use, besides focusing value, meaning and memory on that space.
