ABSTRACT

The purposes of this investigation were to study actual performance, to evaluate the management of school lunch program, and to study the problems and suggestion for the program management. The subjects were 702 primary school administrators and teachers, 936 students and their parents.

The respondents perceived that the management and the effectiveness of the school lunch program were satisfactory. However, the significant problems of the program management were the high burden of teachers, the high rate of investment, and lacking of budgeting. The respondents suggested that in order to achieve the effective management there should be appropriate planning and consideration of activities appropriate to local condition.
