

Trong Siriwan 2007: Factors Affecting Work Behaviors of Yala Provincial Police.
Master of Science (Industrial Psychology), Major Field: Industrial Psychology,
Department of Psychology. Thesis Advisor: Mr.Thawan Nieamsup, Ph.D. 140 pages.

The objectives of this research were to study: 1) working risk perception, stress, attitude toward police career, organizational climate perception and working behaviors of Yala provincial police. 2) the influence of personal factors, working risk perception, stress, attitude toward police career, organizational climate perception on the working behaviors of Yala provincial police. Samples were 340 police officers who working at regional police station in Yala province. Data were collected by questionnaires. The data were analyzed by application computer program. The statistical method used for data analysis were: percentage, mean, standard deviation, and multiple regression analysis with stepwise technique.

The results were: 1) Yala provincial police perceived working risk at high level. 2) the Yala provincial police's total stress and in 2 dimensions: physical dimension and psychological dimension were at moderate level, while stress in behavioral dimension was at low level. 3) attitude toward police career of Yala provincial police was at high level. 4) Yala provincial police perceived total organizational climate and in 4 dimensions: supervision, advancement, challenge and wage at moderate level, while relationship between colleagues dimension was at high level. 5) Yala provincial police's total working behaviors and in 3 dimensions: responsibility, discipline and readiness to working were at high level, while wish to continue working in the area dimension was at moderate level. 6) domicile, period of working time in the area, working risk perception, stress in behavioral dimension, attitude toward police career and organizational climate perception in relationship between colleagues dimension could jointly predict 30.3 percent of the Yala provincial police's total working behaviors at the .001 level of statistic significance. Organizational climate perception in relationship between colleagues was the best predictor.

Trong Siriwan
Student's signature

Thawan Nieamsup
Thesis Advisor's signature

29 / 05 / 2007