

The purpose of this research was to study and gather the experts' points of view concerning school health education in the next decade by using the Delphi Technique. The 30 experts were purposively selected from all health education experts. The constructed questionnaire was used to gather data from the experts. Medians, modes and interquartile ranges were utilized for interpretation of the data.

The findings of this study indicated :

1. In the next decade, health education curriculum contents will include the following topics : nutrition, safety, first-aid, communicable disease, non-communicable disease, mental health, environmental sanitation, public health service sex information, narcotics, consumer health, and aging health concentrated on the increasing of the mental fitness together with the physical fitness for the quality of life development with the instructional purposes will be on rights, duties, self and public health responsibility ; know how to think, analyze and criticize rationally on health problems ; be able to correct the wrong believes and understandings concerning health and safety by using the principle of scientific rational ; to concern on the environment development. The instruction will concentrate on more practices than theories by using the group process, research and the experiment of behavioral sciences theory and the application of the social psychology and also let students participate more on activities.

2. In school health environmental management in both elementary and secondary education levels, school administrators, teachers and students will cooperated and pay more attention to health environment.

3. School health service management will be provided by first-aid room and regular service officers. Students will be taken care of the disease protection and students health guidance ; lunch program will be interested by parents and students quite well as the effects of the increasing of the students' average weight and height.

4. In the management administration of school health education, the administrators will find more significance of health education tasks. School nurse teachers will take more roles on school health programs. There will be more problems on the establishment and operation of school health education task development planning and school health committee.

5. School health education personnel promotion will be systematic, especially the training for the academic increasing. There will be more wide health education research. The ministry of public health will take more roles concerning school health education and also school health education personnel graduation will know more theories than practices. School health program will be the required course in general teacher institution curriculum.