ABSTRACT

The purposes of this study were to investigate the current conditions, problems, and improvement of school administration regarding academic, clearical, student supervision, and service administration. The sample was comprised of 360 subjects including 83 secondary school administrators and 277 secondary school teachers.

A set of questionnaires was developed to collect data, the earned data were analyzed to calculate percentage, arithmetic mean, and standard deviation.

Findings :

The secondary school administrators lightly performed academic, clearical, student supervision, and service administration. Problems on the four aspects were at the "less" level,

The respondents suggested that the secondary school administrators should emphatically performed school building, material management, personnel administration, curriculum and instructional management.
