The research objective was to study the problems of insured persons under the implementation of social security act regarding social insurance enforcement.

The main objective of this program is to improve the efficiency for the unsured persons with the police General Hospital in order to achieve the social security goals.

The population groups in this study are the employees in social security system in Thailand who recieved the police general hospital service in october 1996.

The results of this study show that :

- 1) The educational background and position factors are related to the insured person's knowledge of the social security act.
- 2) The carreer background factors is related to the insured person's problems.
- 3) The knowledge of the social security act is not related to the insured person's problems.
