COALITION GOVERNMENT : A COMPARATIVE STUDY OF THE GOVERNMENTS OF CHUAN LEEKPAI AND BANHARN SILAPAARCHA.

GOV.D., 190 PP.

This study of internal fragmentation of political parties within coalition government as well as the realignment of the coalition during the Chuan Leekpai and Banharn Silpa-archa administrations shows that internal fragmentation of parties under Chuan administration stems from ideological conflicts and conflicting policies with personal conflicts and conflicts of interests as minor causes while, in Banharn administration, the only cause of conflict is the squabble for ministerial posts. The consequence of political fragmentation is instability of the coalition government which weakens parliamentary system of Thai politics.
