The purpose of this research was to develop practice packages for certain English words'vowel and consonant pronunciations. The target of these packages was grade 6 students. These students had problems producing the English vowel and consonant sounds which do not exist in the Thai language phonological inventory. In total there were 8 practice packages produced for the sound : [ ij ], [ ei ], [ əʊ ], [ tʃ ], [ ð ], [ θ ], [ -θ ] and [ -g ]. The pronunciation of these 8 sounds consistently presented problems for Thai students. The practice packages were constructed for use by a teacher or tutor in individually directed student practice sessions to correct misarticulation of an individual student. Each package was produced to provide 3 hours of practice and consisted of 1) a teacher's manual, 2) a word - pronunciation achievement test, 3) pronunciation exercises, 4) visual and audio pronun - ciation aides. The practice packages were development and revised with the goal that students obtain a 80 % score on both the pronunciation exercises and the word - pronunciation achievement test. Lastly, packages were evaluated using ten grade 6 students.

The results showed that each package helped the students to correct their pronunciation problems. The average student's score on each of the eight word pronunciation achievement tests was significantly higher following the use of the parctice packages at the level .05.
