The purposes of this research were to study comparatively needs for educational research, ways to obtain needed research, and problems in utilizing research results between public and private secondary school administrators in Bangkok Metropolis. By way of mailed questionnaires, the data were collected from 115 public secondary school administrators and 166 private secondary school administrators. Obtained data were analyzed by t - test and rank correlation. Major findings of this research were as follows :

On the average, public and private secondary school administrators had needs for educational research in all aspects at high levels. There were significant differences of the needs for educational research on academic affair, personal administration, and students' activities between public and private secondary school administrators. But there were no significant differences of the needs for educational research on general administration including school finance and buildings and the school community relationship. Public and private secondary school administrators had the same ways to obtain needed research on academic affair, personal administration, students' activities, and school community relationship except general administration including finance and buildings. There was no significant difference of most problems in utilizing research results between public and private secondary school administrators. Only the problem of lacking encouragement the staffs to be skillful researchers, the private secondary school administrators had more problems than the public secondary school administrators.
