Most rape cases always show some form of rape traces which are deemed as scientific evidence requiring special knowledge and experience of experts to examine. The experts will then reveal any concealed meanings to juridical officials so that truth shall be found to identify guilt as well as to affirm the innocence.

Today, advance scientific knowledge is significant for rape case investigation as it can identify criminal or prove wrong doer's guilt.

In the case that expert witness and scientific evidence shall play more important role in the rape case, law must be amended to stipulate for the compulsory taking of scientific evidence in rape case. It is, therefore, imperative that the public authorities who apply the law must be knowledgeable and have enough experience to handle the evidence. Moreover, expert witness must be given the opportunity to examine the evidence as soon as possible. The expert witness must testify for or against such evidence in court. It is also important that government shall give support to expert's institutions, such as, experts' associations, laboratory facilities, and shall promote practice independency among experts so that they will play significant role in such matter for the interest of public justice.
