The purpose of this research study was to design information systems structure for production administration unit of radio and television production center, office of educational technology, Sukhothaithammathiraj Open University.

The findings were as follows :

It was found that there was a need for the radio and television production center to install computer network systems to help solve problems which occurred within the organization. Recommended structure of information systems were broken down into three sections : Input; Process; and Output. Even though the design of the workflow was found to be similar to the old structure, it was suggested to replace manual work with computer network systems. It was suggested that computers be available in different locations in the work place so that the staff members can access at any period of time.
