The purpose of this research is to study the political ideology of the Democrat Party, its perception, its role and its adherence to the political ideology.

The methods used in the study are those of documentary research and interviews in-depth. The Democrat Party, founded in 1946, has a long evolution. The party's ideology used to be conservative. Since 1974 its democratic ideology has become more progressive. The unity among leaders of the party has been relatively high. Its 768 members of the parliament belong to its 163 branches. The party has been supported widely by the people. The Democrat Party is a stable party. However, the party branch is to be qualitatively improved for its future success.
