

C270313 : MAJOR LAW

KEY WORD: ENFORCEMENT/FOREST/TRESSPASS

MULLIKA MANTASATIAN : LAW ENFORCEMENT ON PREVENTING AND SUPPRESSING OF NATIONAL RESERVED FOREST AREAS TRESSPASSED. THESIS ADVISOR : ASSOC.PROF. VIRAPHONG BOONYOBHAS, CO-ADVISOR PROF. MANOCH WONGSURYRAT, 210 pp. ISBN 974-583-561-7

As the matter of fact, Thailand is facing with the problem of forest area tresspassed especially with the National reserved forest areas which cause a lot of effects to the country such as effects on Economic, Social and Politic. Moreover, it causes tremendous danger to the nature as well, Which bring to the unexpected lost of properties and lives of citizens. From the reason mentioned above, indicated that State has to provide National Policy, law enforcement agencies and forest Law in the same direction in order to create the efficiency of law enforcement's measures for preventing and suppressing on National reserved forest areas tresspassed.

The result from analysis this thesis showed that the obstacles on law enforcement come from unclear state policy and usually be ad hoc policy. Furthermore, there are also lack of co-operation among the enforcement agencies. Although there are a lot of concerning legal provisions but they are rather difficult to understand so revision of these provisions will be needed in the near future.

The achievement of this thesis focus on presenting problems and obstacles on law enforcement of National reserved forest areas tresspassed and also try to solve these problems by considering on long term and clear of state policy, Settling coordinate agency among law enforcement agencies and also grouping the concerning legal provision.