This study aims to follow up the trainees in that they can use the knowledge from the training for the personnel management, to study the problems of using the knowledge and the experience from the traing and to study the executors' opinions in their subordinators' ways of using the knowledge for the know-how, understandings, attitudes and abilities to work.

It is found that the trainees can use the knowledge to work for a great extent except the personnel development which is used intermediately. The result of the using can improve the work. As for the problems of the using of the experience of the trainees, there are few problem. Except that there are intermediate problem in the power rate of the government services and regular employees. As for the executors opinions in their subordinators' knowledge, understanding, attitudes and abilities to work, it is found that the executors have great pleasure in their subordinators' ways of using the knowledge. As for the curriculum for training the personnels, most executors think that the curriculum is appropriate. Only a few think it is inappropriate. In addition, it is found that both the trainees and the executors suggest training the personnels every year, at once a year.
