The objective of this research is to study the present of subject headings of clippings used in business newspaper libraries and the needs of the news staff in using those headings for classifying group, kind and vocabulary.

The result of the study shows that the main headings are divided into 5-8 groups ; the kind of the subject headings used mostly are one word for the main headings, and also free terms.

For needs of classifying the group of the subject headings, the news staff agree that the library has already specifically divided them. For needs of the main headings and the mean of percentage ; one word headings are needed the most. Besides, the news staff use the free terms most of all. Finally, the percentage of the most suitable words used by the news staff are loan words and the free terms.
