

Abstract

Title Civil Class Action in Environmental case

Field Politics

Name Mr. Sakda Choungrangsi

Course NDC (JSPS) Class 24

Currently, Environmental problems are increasing every day especially in Thailand which cause of many environmental dispute. Mostly, in the cases of environmental damage. Not only affect the one person but also caused environmental impacts broadly. Therefore, the action in Thailand has resulted in a large number of injured was not immediately remedies.

From this research found that there are many countries apply the class action. Both Civil Law system such as France and Brazil, and Common Law system such as the United States and Canada is model in the regulations to enforce the law of class action which benefit for injured people. In addition, class action is one of legal system that should be applied so that the action in Thailand is more effective to solve such problem and obstruction for people who suffered from environmental problems.