The study of the approach to create harmony in Thai society aims to analyse the political conflicts in Thai society, including the study of barriers and constraints to create harmony and to suggest the way to resolve the political conflicts in Thai society by studying the issues that cause breakage of the political ideas that have occurred since the 2005 to the present (excluding the problem of insurgency in the three southern border provinces.) This is a qualitative research by collecting data and analyzing the data base on documentations, articles, theory and research both domestic and aboard which related to the harmony.

The results of the research concluded that the opposition consists of 3 conflicts, which are the conflicts of interest, the political conflicts, and the conflicts of ideas and public opinion, while the difficulties in creating harmony in Thai society are the lack of sincerity in solving the problems and the serious separation of the governments departments nowadays.

The approaches to create the harmony in short term are consists of 1.To create the sincerity to harmony 2.To have a mediator during mediation 3.To reform the media and 4.To create the reconciliation bill and amnesty. The long term approaches are consists of 1.The way to solve economic and social inequality and 2.The reformation of the education, politics and democracy. The researchers agreed that it's time that all parties must give priority to solve the problems with seriousness and sincerity, find a solution to the country in one way or another whether it's a face to face, mediation by the mediator or to create the reconciliation bill in order to bring the Thai society back as a society to live and love again.
