

Abstract

Title: Administration of Credit Union Cooperatives Committees in Phetchaburi
Author: Waraporn Sriboon et al.
Institute: Silapakorn University, IT campus, Phetchaburi

The objective of the study was to examine administration of credit union cooperative committees and administration problems for such organization. The study was conducted in qualitative method. The samples (key informant) used in the study included board of director, sub-committee, management, and member from 9 areas. Focus group and document study were used as data-collecting instrument.

The findings revealed that

1.1) The cooperatives general assembly elected the chair of the board then the chair elected the committees and conduct of election by mean of open or secret ballot depended upon such general assembly resolution. 1.2) The committees held the office for the limited term to promote job rotation 1.3) The committee qualification must meet the cooperatives requirement and comply with the regulation 1.4) The committee must sacrifice to the public, be honest and transparent for work 1.5) The committee who had profound knowledge about credit union cooperatives can develop the organization better way of management and the employee development by mean of training can gain more organization capability as well.

Keyword: Credit Union Cooperatives, Administration