

ABSTRACT

This paper explains the rise of new terminology “Islamophobia”, new phenomenon of inter-conflict around the globe mainly between the West and Muslim world after the U.S. was attacked by fundamental Muslims on September 11, 2001. Muslims were prejudiced against, discriminated against and determined as a core problem of world security by the west and international media.

This paper explains the concept of Islamophobia, the root of the problem, contemporary issues and discourse over the rise of Islamophobia, after the U.S. war against terrorism was declared, the paper also tries to look at Islamophobia through various approaches mainly on the issues of security, sociology and cultural dimension. The paper also demonstrates the role of international players and examines many policies from International organization which tried to respond to Islamophobic issues.

Not only the problem of Islam, Islamophobia become a world issue and seems to play an important role in the entire global international relations arena. Therefore we have to collaborate and create right understanding as well as a good attitude about Islamophobia in order to prevent any mistrust from different ideology and practices between Muslim and Non-Muslim world.
