

APPENDIX F

Passage for Reading Aloud

Charlie's Summer Holidays

Charlie is a twelve-year-old boy. This is his third time to go to the sea on summer holidays. He loves this place very much. It is a small village and far from any noisy sounds. The villagers are also very friendly. Therefore, this is a pleasure time of his family. He and his father often go sailing in the sunny day. Charlie can see a school of fish and shrimp swimming together under the crystal clear blue water. He is singing happily while he tries to catch a small fish but it jumps and splashes cold water on his face. He screams and laughs.

This afternoon is different from previous ones. His father tells him that they are going to go surfing. Oh! It is his first time. He runs rapidly to follow his father. He isn't interested in beautiful seashells on the seashore like always. After surfing, his mother serves delicious seafood dinner. "It's a wonderful summer holiday", Charlie thinks.

Created by Apisara S.