

Songchai Nakjakhe, Sergeant Major First Class 2014: Organizational Commitment of Military Officers in the Engineer Department, Fort Bhanurangsi, Ratchaburi Province. Master of Arts (Political Science), Major Field: Political Science, Department of Political Science and Public Administration. Thesis Advisor: Associate Professor Supatra Chunnapiya, M.A. 210 pages.

The research on the “organizational commitment of military officers in the engineer department, fortbhanurangsi, ratchaburi province” aimed 1) to study level of organizational commitment of military officers in the Engineer Department, Fort Bhanurangsi, Ratchaburi Province 2) this research was to study relationship between the job factor and the organizational factor with organizational commitment of military officers in the Engineer Department, Fort Bhanurangsi, Ratchaburi Province. The samples of this research composed of 289 military officers in the Engineer Department, Fort Bhanurangsi. The statistics used for data analysis included percentage, mean, standard deviation, One Way ANOVA, Multiple Classification Analysis: MCA were at the .05 level of significance.

The organizational factor and organizational commitment of The research findings indicated organizational commitment of military officers in the Engineer Department, Fort Bhanurangsi, Ratchaburi Province was at high level. In hypothesis found that age and rank of human factor: all variables of the job factor and the organizational factor related with organizational commitment were at the .05 level of significance.

---

Student's signature

---

Thesis Advisor's signature