

Pattama Kabkangplu 2013: Opinions of Sub-district Administrative Organization Staff in Bang Bua Thong District, Nonthaburi on Good Local Politicians. Master of Arts (Political Science), Major Field: Political Science, Department of Political Science and Public Administration. Thesis Advisor: Associate Professor Wanlop Ratchatranon, Ph.D. 114 pages.

This study aims to investigate the opinion towards the officers of sub-districts administration organization in Bangbuathong, Nonthaburi about the good local politician. Quantitative methods were employed by using questionnaires to collect data from 155 officers and analyzed by statistical software. The questionnaire was the instrument of the data collection. The descriptive statistics such as percentage, Mean, standard deviation, and the hypothesis testing statistics such as t-test, One Way ANOVA and Pearson Correlation Coefficient were used as the statistical analysis. The level of significance for statistical methods was set at 0.05

The results showed that the officers' opinion is contributed significantly to the development of local politics in Bangbuathong. In particular, speak seriously and transparent administration at the high level. The next was a matter of moral ethics in local administration along with the updated knowledge about the local government and administration, local development plan, always new initiatives and allow subordinates to share ideas with each other in the operation in respectively. However, the family's honor, experience in managing organizations like the supervisors in public or private, staffs considered the least important.

---

Student's signature

---

Thesis Advisor's signature