ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

I would like to express my greatest thanks to the many persons who have inspired me and provided me tremendous support, guidance, and encouragement throughout my doctoral study and doctoral research. First and foremost, I would like to thank the persons awaiting coronary artery bypass grafting who participated in this study for their willingness and efforts to share their valuable experiences. Without them, this dissertation would not have taken place.

I wish to express my gratitude to Assistance Professor Dr. Achara Sukonthasarn, the chair of my dissertation advisory committee, for her professionalism and excellence as a teacher and mentor. I appreciated her dedicate time, constant encouragement, patience, and extremely helpful comments. I am grateful to Associate Professor Dr. Chawapornpan Chanprasit, my co-advisor whose professionalism had a significant influence on my dissertation, for her valuable instruction, intellectual guidance, patience, caring, and timely feedback on the dissertation. I would also like to express my sincere appreciation to Lecturer Dr. Suparat Wangsrikhun, my co-advisor, for her constant support and constructive comments. Without all of them, this dissertation would not be possible.

I am very thankful to my examining committee members, Associate Professor Dr. Warunee Fongkaew, Lecturer Dr. Hunsa Sethabouppha, and Dr. Warunee Jaiprasert who shared their thoughtful comments and scholarly recommendations to strengthen my dissertation. My sincere appreciation also goes to Dr. Sue Turale, the Editor-in-Chief of Nursing & Health Science, for her valuable time, suggestions, and criticisms with profound knowledge in research which are very helpful for me in preparation of the manuscript.

Most importantly, I wish to express my deep love and gratitude to my parents: Rujira and Tawatchai Indratula for their wonderful nurturing, unconditional love, and always being there to support me. Without them, I would not have had this successful day. I also would like to thank my beloved brother, Thaitawat Indraula, for his constant support and encouragement at various points along the way during my study.

My sincere gratitude and thanks is extended to my doctoral classmates, senior, and junior doctoral students for their endless support, encouragement, and understanding. The special thanks also go to Lecturer Dr. Nattapong Swangmuang and Tae Kim for giving me the continued moral support and improving my English writing.

Finally, I gratefully acknowledge the Ministry of Education for providing scholarly support for my study. My sincere thanks go to the Thailand Nursing and Midwifery Council for providing financial support for working on my dissertation. My most heartfelt gratitude and appreciation is extended to the Faculty of Nursing, Chiang Mai University for giving me the opportunity to learn valuable life skills along with academic skills along the way of my study.
