

Abstract

The study on “The expectation of life after the Watsakaeo home for orphaned and poor Children” has objective for study the opinions of services from residential homes and expectations of children after foster care. For the guidelines on the services development of residential homes. The sample groups were 121 children in care of Watsakaeo homes for orphaned and poor Children for studying in Mattsayom two and three. The tool used for collecting data was a set of questionnaires. A statistical data analysis was made in terms of percentage, arithmetic mean, average, standard deviation, Pearson product moment correlation coefficient findings and SPSS program.

The study was found the majority of the samples were aged 15-16 years. The reason of intake of the residential home since the poor ,in duration three to six residential home. On the whole, the sample groups had including mode in general service the best level. They have found that provided service food the best level on three meals. Second ,the teacher and parents take care in suggestion a can solve the problems. They are satisfied with service clothes they received from donation are clean. Therefore, the study on expectation of living outside residential homes found the sample groups had expectation it mode career the best level. The sample expectation like self-employment the best level. The second expectation help family support in employment after Outside residential home And expectation employment in salary. The sample wanted the fund for study in the most after Outside residential home.

The recommendations are the residential home should provide the fund of occupational and education for children in preparation Outside residential home. The residential home follow up children out of home who develop them selves in the future and can live in society effectively. That bring the example for prepare children outside institution.