

Thawatchai Sakprasart 2006: Solving Problem Approach of the Highland Community at Doi Pha Hing, Amphoe Long, Changwat Phare. Master of Science (Forest Resource Administration), Major Field: Forest Resource Administration, Interdisciplinary Graduate Program. Thesis Advisor: Associate Professor Wicha Niyom, Ph.D.
87 pages.
ISBN 974-16-2510-3

The study on satisfaction of the community settlement at Doi Pha Hing head watershed, amphur Long, Phare province aims to study the satisfy of the community settlement of people in Moo.6 Ban Phra Kho, to study the community settlement characteristic in watershed, and possibility of people move to other village. The research used the 39 questionnaire All family tested with the.

The results revealed that samples were 83.8 percentages male and house hold leaders were 97.3 percentages. The 78.4 percentages were primary school education and were agriculturist but not right of ownership for land (94.6). The people have been have knowledge on watershed conservation and natural resources in high level about 75.96 percentages. The 51.4 percentages were immigration from other provinces and melted for good the environment in the watershed. The 71.0 percentages were needed the migration but have been repay from government were satisfied . For the output from checked by sharpen questionnaire were 27 person (69. 23 percentages) were needed the migration if the government pay were satisfied. And 12 persons (30.76 percentages) were not migrated from the watershed but might migration if satisfy for state policy about 18.18 percentage and 9.0 percentage immigration if all people in family to encourage . The 3.59 percentages of people were not think about the migration.

Student's signature

Thesis Advisor's signature

23 / May / 2006