The study was conducted due to the reason that urban development and planning in the future should thoroughly understand and realize how the community had developed from the history. Urbanization in many levels related each others and changed from time to time must be regarded.

Second, It has been believed that problem solving and urban planning in the future must be contributed by people. This is now the most important to make the plan applicable.

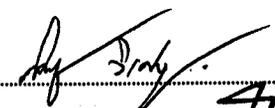

By both reasons, this study event thoroughly for learning, finding and then summarized the results to two parts. The first part concerned with knowledges and understandings of the development of Phetchaburi Province from the past until now. The study shows that Phetchaburi Province was a Center of transportation and tradition of the western part of Thailand. Urbanization developed rapidly after Pechkasem Road was routed through Phetchaburi Province, anyway, some communities were developed by themselves. By the reasons, eventhough there was not any urban development process, some communities were developed by local people. As the results, this conceptual idea of study is possible and applicable.

The second part of the study concluded usefulness of the study. First, the study would be used as basis data for urban development planning along with mobilization of community. Second, to be used as academic knowledge and third, to be used by public such as tourism.
